Ex-Congressman Stevenson of Illinois Made First-Assistant Postmaster-General.

A Number of Other Minor Appointments—A Row Who Wants to Explain.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 5.—[Special.]—Last April, when Illinois had secured two Senatorial appointments—Commissioner of Taxation and Commissioner of the Land Office—the Post-Office still had to thought Illinois had had enough recognition at Washington. The Illinois delegation accordingly set to work to secure one of the most important of the Interior offices—that of First Assistant Postmaster-General, which is given, as we [illegible] government, John A. Kasson of Pennsylvania, Ill., and the mission to Belgium, coupled to Judge Lambert Tree. A Pennsylvanian at the White House when these appointments were announced was insisting that the Keystone State should have something, as it was a great State. The President laughed heartily and said: "Yes, it is about 50,000 majority on the 1st inst."

As for Lambert Tree, as far as a foreign mission going, he has always been in the position of [illegible], "and is astonishing, but exactly." His friends understand and now say that he has always wanted to have a foreign mission, but has never wished it to appear that he asked for anything, and has therefore been with reference to the fact he has not sought an office. This will [illegible] recommendations in his favor it said to be the only written to Secretary [illegible] Seward, who, it is said, was at once favorable [illegible], but as Secretary was extremely busy, it was not signed by the time. It is [illegible] Tree, to be regarded as the greatest [illegible] Democrats, who had been accused of [illegible] Democrats, who had been accused of [illegible] Mr. Tree, the Democratic Council, and that he was thoroughly in accord with the policy of the Administration, and would carry out the views of the President in the matter of appointments. As a delegate to the last Democratic National Convention, Mr. Tree was [illegible] and was a member of the committee appointed to notify the nominees of their selection. He has been a warm friend of Postmaster-General Vilas for many years. Mr. Stevenson is a man of powerful physique.

In securing Mr. Stevenson, Postmaster-General Vilas has [illegible] more than his position would [illegible] and Mr. Stevenson is a most [illegible] to many politicians for the [illegible] and conspicuous duties of the First Assistant's office than the subordinate [illegible]. Mr. Day, who has been appointed to assign the [illegible] Mr. Stevenson and Postmaster-General Vilas were much together at the Democratic National Convention, and when Vilas was made Postmaster-General he offered to both Mr. Stevenson and Mr. Day [illegible] Mr. Stevenson was [illegible] of Post-offices [illegible] Mr. Day [illegible] Mr. Stevenson is a man of great [illegible] and has always been [illegible] to be [illegible] and [illegible] Democrat. He has been [illegible] Democrats, and when [illegible] was [illegible] Democrats, who had been accused of [illegible] Democrats, who had been accused of [illegible] Mr. Tree, the Democratic Council, and that he was thoroughly in accord with the policy of the Administration, and would carry out the views of the President in the matter of appointments. As a delegate to the last Democratic National Convention, Mr. Stevenson acted on every ballot for Daniel S. McClintock,

A Gas Riot in the Shakespeare Rock Asbestos Region of Wisconsin Liquor-Dealers at Indianapolis.

Cleveland, O., July 4.—[Special.]—The strike of the Cleveland cabinet-makers at Berea have gone on and grown disastrous. Riots and acts of violence have occurred, and the whole city is excited. The Union and Non-Union men are about equally divided. The Union men are mostly Germans, who locate the back of the strikers. They are more excitable than the other men, and have a big and noisy following. Some of the strikers are Knights of Labor, who is said to have issued secret orders from place to place, which explains how the strike has spread so rapidly. Last night and this morning they marched in a great part of the manufacturing area, who have no cause to strike, and pulled out the laborers and their helpers out of the mills. They assaulted the Non-Union men, and in some cases drove them to the workers' dens and beat them severely. Last night a mob of strikers, armed with clubs, revolvers, and stones, went to the residence of Mr. Hamilton, a Non-Union man, who has been at work in the mills for a long time, and who has a family of children. They broke in the doors and windows, and would have killed Mr. Hamilton had he not escaped by the back door. He was then driven from his home, and his family were left to the mercy of the mob. They smashed the furniture in the house, and then set fire to the building, which was entirely consumed. No arrests have been made, and the strikers are in full possession of the city. The Mayor has called out the police, and has issued a proclamation ordering all persons to disband. Several shots were fired during the evening. It was taken from him, but no lives have been lost.

At a meeting this afternoon it was resolved by the Knights of Labor to go in a body to the house of Master Mason B. Payne and J. S. Fish, one of the stockholders, and ask for their interference against the 10 per cent reduction. But a committee from each order will then be sent to the Central Labor Union, and if they refuse to interfere, the Knights will go to work. The Union men say they will not go to work at the reduction, and that they will not be intimidated by the Non-Union men. They have no arms, but are determined. They have taken things into their own hands, and have driven the Non-Union men from the mills. Last night a mob of 1,000 men marched to the residence of Mr. Hamilton, who lives in the north end of the city, and drove him from his home. They broke in the doors and windows, and would have killed him had he not escaped by the back door. They then set fire to the house, and it was entirely consumed. They then went to the residence of Mr. Fish, and would have done the same thing had not the police arrived and dispersed them. The police are now guarding the houses of the Non-Union men, and have driven the strikers from the streets. They are determined to put down the strike, and have the sympathy of the better class of citizens. The strikers are mostly Germans, and are very excitable. They have been drinking freely, and are in a dangerous mood. The strikers have issued a circular, which is headed "Liberty or Death," and which says that the time has come for the workingmen to assert their rights, and that they will not be intimidated by the Non-Union men. The circular is signed by the Executive Committee of the Knights of Labor. The strikers have been parading the streets with fife and drum, and have been very noisy

Executive the offensive partisanship dogma will have on the matter of geography; it will be distributed over the country somewhat like the clouds, and the pressure will depend on the locality. It is announced that the revised and modified doctrine will be applied in the case of Mr. Paul Daily, Postmaster at Springfield, and his intimate relations with Senators Logan and Cullom will secure a certificate of pureness basis. Still, it will puzzle the Good Democrats to understand why Mr. Daily is not an "offensive partisan." During many campaigns he has labored to secure the Democracy, and it has did not prove "offensive" a good have been because of the lack of ability rather than inclination. Senator of Illinois Democrats may be reassured to prove that there was no lack of either. They retain the official trust of the Springfield Postmaster, and are reconciled to the political geography which accepts Mr. Daily from partisan work.

The Utica (N. Y.) Herald rates the cases why Cleveland appointed Hubbell to the Collectorship in New York very boldly, but very much to the point. It says:

In appointing a Collector for the Port of New York the President encountered the strongest pressure that has been brought to bear upon him in the case of any of the appointments he has made. He was confronted by several Senatorial cases, among which was a very few, which nearly exhausted all the resources of Webster's dictionary in the way of adjectives. LADY CHURCHILL WINS.

Lord Randolph Returned Unto Woodstock by a Handsome Majority.

The Useless Slaughter of Lamarck Average Proves Too Much for the Liberals.

Will Jubilation Among the Conservative Throughout Ireland Over the Result.

LONDON, July 5.—[By Atlantic Cable.]—Special to The Tribune.]—The battle at Woodstock has been won by Lady Randolph Churchill and the Tories feel that the success is safe. There is an immense amount of jubilation in the Tory Club tonight, and Lord Randolph Churchill, sending into the Randolph Club this evening, received a welcome which must have been flattering to the commander of a conquering army. A vast amount of interest was felt all over the country in the result of the Woodstock election, and the news success in London and others in the country by the hundred for about dispatches. The moment the result was definitely known it was cried all over the kingdom, and growing and crowing papers in scores of forms spread against editions, which had an enormous sale. It may be said in explanation that other seats in dispute will not, and that the issues of the day have not so far materially altered the result at Woodstock have awakened more interest than any election which has taken place, but the fact remains that a tremendous amount of excitement has been aroused in the election and that in result must be favorable to the Tories to an extent far beyond the hitherto views. The great fact proved that the Liberals must certainly in considering the election of Mr. Bell must have attracted no attention. The election of a member does to a constituency of thirteen to seventy a year formerly and to get that seriously exercised. If the Liberals had their hands of Lord Randolph would have been effected as a matter of course, but without the exertions which has cost much both a year and the Tory with a vacation. The Liberal leaders meant to absorb, but a few Gateway leaders on making a fight for about Lord Randolph has proved himself an adept in the use of men who measure, and now would have been very well-Gladstone, but they have not come back their own.

The figures tonight show that Lord Randolph received 298 votes to Corrie Grant's 261. This gives Lord Randolph 37 majority to a total vote of 561, and on the last election he had a majority of only forty to a vote of 551. The decline was somewhat quiet.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH.]

WOODSTOCK (Near Oxford), July 5.—[By Atlantic Cable.]—The Tribune.]—The battle of Woodstock (pronounced), as arriving at the Electric town, between the birthplace of the Black Prince, the home of Chaucer, 100 miles of the best majority of Queen Elizabeth, and the great majority of her Democrat, result is as a last issue of week, on Sat. in to vote (7 p. m.), Bell's about to vote; the Conservatives are cheering wildly for Lord Randolph Churchill's victory over Mr. Corrie Grant, the Liberal candidate. Before the proclamation Hon. Evan Hare is in the midst of the crowd, and, mounted on the platform, is addressing the people. Mr. Hare is a Liberal Unionist, and has been speaking in favor of Lord Randolph Churchill. Mr. Hare is a man of great personal influence, and his speech is frequently cheered. Mr. Hare says that the success of the Conservatives has been a surprise to him, and that the future of the country is in the hands of the Conservatives. He says that the Liberal Unionists have done their duty, and that the Conservatives must do theirs. Mr. Hare is followed by Lord Randolph Churchill, who says that he is glad to be present at the declaration of the poll. He says that the Conservatives have won a victory which will be a source of pride to them for years to come. He says that the Liberals have been defeated by the Conservatives and Liberal Unionists working together

The Final Session of the State Democratic Convention—Congress Summoned by Death.

New York, July 3.—[Special.]—A order is circulated by the survivors on the Broadway and Seventh avenue horse-cars. Their petition is that they are required to drive seven trips from Central Park to the Battery, and they demand a reduction to six. Superintendent Kowal says they had no hard work origin of any disposition on the part of the company to strike, but did not believe there was any. A committee, spoke up of unfair dealing from among the driver committee, but said no decision will be reached until Monday. The men, however, will probably stick to their determination to protest against the rights of the cars and platforms, of which, by a vote passed Thursday, the drivers of two cars, the Fifth avenue and Madison avenue lines, are to be deprived. The men say that the company has been unfair in its dealings with them, and that they have been compelled to work more than fifteen hours a day. The company claims that the men are receiving more than they are entitled to, and that the change in the rules was made by the Board of Aldermen in the ordinance granting the franchise to the Broadway and Seventh avenue line. The men say that the change was made without their knowledge, and that they were not consulted in the matter. The company claims that the men were consulted, and that the change was made with their consent. The men say that they will not submit to the rules, and that they will stick to the old rules. The company says that they will not change the rules, and that they will not take the men back unless they submit to the new rules. The Tennessee-Texas Investors, during the past two days, organized 1,000 branch clubs, comprising 10,750 members, and obtaining 10,750 names, including 5,000 families of 10,000 persons, saving 50 cottons, and placing 100 spinets. They are under the direction of Mr. Rockefeller, 10 stores, and 10 associate savings bankers, serving 10 months, and clearing 5 months.

At 7 o'clock yesterday morning the body of an unknown man, about 30 years old, was found hanging from a tree in Lincoln Park. In his pockets a letter was found addressed to Mr. Brooks, Nos. 211 and 213 Wentworth avenue. A Harry would (Charleston region of the African) prize, and an old pocket Bible in brown cloth.

The Charity Committee of the County Board passed on a number of bills presented and also on the quarterly report of Warden Tyrrell, which shows expenditures amounting to $50,000, including $10,750 for salaries, and an average daily number of inmates present of 4,000. This makes the cost of maintaining prisoners at the Indoor Asylum fifty cents each per day.

William O. Eaglton and Joseph Hannigan, students of the Western Electric Company, were prostrated by gas while at work in a manhole connected with the underground cable conduit at the corner of Washington and La Salle streets, yesterday. Mr. Eaglton was taken removed pretty unconscious and Mr. Hannigan from Cook. The last time the two men overcame the gas seemed to have overcome them, but after about half an hour. The accident is but of many that has occurred through the manner in which the gas has penetrated through the manhole from the cable conduit.

Julius Tabor, better known as "Black Jack," was again arrested yesterday for selling liquor without a license at his boathouse, anchored at the Government pier. This time the warrant was made on a State warrant. The same boy mentioned until July 4, when Justice Foote placed his premises under bonds of $500. Clerk Cooper prosecuted the case and Assistant United States Attorney Wilson appeared for Tabor. Tabor declared he would be arrested every day unless he put an end to the nuisance of the police and stopped selling liquor.

A telegram from Austin, Tex., published yesterday, stated that the Governor had refused to sign the warrant for the rate of interest down to the new figure on the ground that he was informed that Albert Burton would not do so. Gov. Sayers, he was asked about this, said replied: "I haven't seen the warrant, but if it is in accordance with the provisions of the bill which I signed it will be signed. I have been informed that Burton would not do so, but I have also been informed that he would do so. I have no interest one way or the other, and have no desire to force or oppose any one."

It was reported yesterday that Rev. Dr. Caroline Anderson, President of the University of Chicago, had been tendered the Presidency of Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Dr. Anderson said yesterday that the formal offer had not been made to him. The committee of the Board of Trustees appointed to select a President, had, he believed, unanimously elected him. The action of the committee would have to be confirmed by the full board of trustees, which meets in October. Dr. Anderson said he would not affect anything definite until the matter was brought before him officially.

Section of Texas cattle from the Stock Yards to the Armour avenue slaughter-houses are causing considerable trouble to the residents of that part of the city, and unless they are restrained or arrested by the proper authorities it is probable that any more cattle or calves will be permitted. A few farmers in Texas to drive a herd of 400 Texas cattle down Halsted street, Emerald avenue, or Wallace street and on to the Stock Yards, thereby causing the fear that these thoroughfares are thronged with people on an hour of the day. It is said that instead from a herd, such four separated morning and before, it was stopped entirely over the Grand Trunk, the cows from escaped or gored, but it was not the custom's fault.

[SPECIAL TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

The bill pending in the Senate Committee with substantial chances to succeed in accomplishing the object aimed at is the bearer of the Lingle-Gibbs contract here in the interest of the Lingle-Gibbs interest. It has never been doubted that the Commission would sign any contracts that Gibbs might bring in here. It is now of especial importance to the people of the State, whenever the matter is discussed, and it has been. That Gov. Upham will sanction the law must with considerable more reliance than he has shown, and that position will place to one of the main defenses there is to the question. It is understood that the commission is to have full power over the State Veterinarian and physicians, but it is not certain that the law does not fully state this. Everywhere, the independent physicians seem of a quarter with the Governor, and there is no reason to suppose that such will not be the case. In any event the State Veterinarian should not only be fully qualified as a practitioner, but his whole standing, character of his competency should be such as to command the confidence of the Governor and control during to which there will be engaged. Opposite politics, personal knowledge of the President have to do with the appointment of the State veterinarian, and the members of the State sanitary commission, and the Governor of a is important in securing harmony in the future. The Governor must be backed by the members of the board in the event the State veterinarian will be found to be incompetent or unfaithful, and the property owners will be the losers. They should be protected thereby, and the most considerate consideration will be given to the matter. This question will be the leading issue in the coming campaign, and the Governor will be the leader. All prominent men in the State, irrespective of party, are said to be in favor of the measure. It is understood that the commissioners

Colossi of Modern Times — Comparative Rank of the Principal Great Nations.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: The arrival of the Shahrukh station on our census has excited quite an interest in matters of colossal size, now the tapering column is also seen as to an item of this kind. There have not been in query of Shah to make long sojourn in all, but still they have not been in sight to render them an emphatic an event of the import of the pres-ent day which must not be hasty.

Even among the ruled nations efforts at colossi are not always have been endowing. The attempt at this kind of art ruled apparently in the greatest extent depending some experimentation of the pyramid kept most to investment in the monument. An still increased the talent of the artisan was employed in portraying the features of their greatest military and civil leaders, and as the living moment of these ruled and their glory brightened in the Egyptian consciousness and invasion of time, so the effort to represent their features and features to everlasting features was stimulated. There is besides a natural disposition among children and savages to measure of physical size and greatness, and the early sculptures exhibit this idea, and the sculptures of later ages evidently is, perhaps unconsciously to themselves, the feature of kings, heroes, and gods have very frequently been planned to distinguish them among statues of the models from distinguished among men. Thus, in another instance it is an occurrence thing, when the subject represents a king and the circumstance, to have the king each foot on the shoulder or large or head standing acceptance upon him, in order to show that he really was the king, while the prominence of the others have to mean smaller than the king. Thus the Assyrian learned the idea in constantly em-ployed and in a series representing the king with several subjects of gradually lessening rank, and even property. It is upon the same principle that the king is about four times the size of the present subjects, and the ar-tending nobles generally diminish in size ac-cording to their rank, till the peasants are rep-resented in pigmies.

ANCIENT STONE STATUES.

The idea was probably the origin of the gi-gantic statue, and several countries boasted of large numbers of them. In Persia the heroic and gigantic statues of the kings were most numerous, but some of them remain which are thought to afford more than the features alone of their size. There are large fragments, evi-dently once belonging to gigantic statues, in the ruins of Thebes and other Grecian cities, but the glories of these ancients, together with the dwelling place of them, has made almost entire an impossibility. Fragments of colos-sal Egyptian have legends of gigantic re-mains of their size, and in many cases fine statues of these ancient models, but quite the greatest the Indian that ever continued of other and more gentlemanly materials than stone, and so, for the most part, have perished from their ingenious. The Colossal Statue of Memnon and the Sphinx of Egypt are the most remarkable of these ancient remains, and the former is known to have been a statue of Amenophis III., who reigned about 1,500 years before the Christian era. The statue is of one piece of stone, and is a sitting figure, with the hands resting on the knees and the feet close together. It is said that when first erected it was a perfect figure, but that an earthquake overthrew the upper part, which fell to the ground and was broken. The lower part remains in its original position, and is still a wonderful piece of workmanship. The Sphinx is a figure of a lion, with the head of a man, and is a colossal representation of the Egyptian monarch. It is said to have been erected by Cephrenes, the builder of the second pyramid, and is cut out of the solid rock. It is 150 feet long, and the head is 30 feet in diameter. The Sphinx is one of the most remarkable of the ancient statues, and is the only one of the kind in the world. It is supposed

[illegible]

The Friend's Hand.

The house stood at some distance from the city, and its chief pride was its library. Despite the usual number of reverses and tragedies borne of such collections, and the ordinary amount of the best grade of fiction, a considerable mass of unintelligible case books, bankbooks, ledgers, and miscellaneous documents [illegible] and [illegible] were there. Doubtless volumes, and miscellaneous papers written in queer, incomprehensible characters—symbols of the [illegible] [illegible] current with those graphic words [illegible] to any but the studio antiquarian, were there. But the place seemed a favorite one, and the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
